Networking Hegemony: Alliance Dynamics in East Asia
Matteo Dian, Hugo Meijer | International Politics
"...China's selective contestation of the US-led hegemonic order in East Asia has sparked a renegotiation of such order among regional powers, which has resulted in the restructuring of the underlying alliances and defence partnerships into a networked security architecture. Specifically, regional powers have sought to broaden the composition of the US-led hegemonic order in East Asia..."

The Impact of Climate Change on Incomes and Convergence in Africa
Florent Baarsch | World Development
"...The analysis raises issues on the ability of African countries to reach their SDGs targets and the potential increasing risk of instability, migration across African countries, of decreased trade and economic cooperation opportunities as a consequence of climate change - exacerbating its negative consequences."

Transitional Justice in Tunisia: When Religion Meets State
Elham Kazemi | International Journal of Transitional Justice
"Using Tunisia as an illustrative case study, this article argues that local [transitional justice] is not immune to power struggles. More specifically, in countries with a legacy of state-sponsored assertive secularism, religion is more likely to play a role as a marker of political and collective identity leading to polarization in the transition process."

The State Project of Crisis Management: China’s Shantytown Redevelopment Schemes Under State-Led Financialization
Shenjing He, Mengzhu Zhang, Zongcai Wei | Environment and Planning A: Economy and Space
"Since 2008, China has introduced state-led financialization to inject low-interest, stable and long-term loans to facilitate urban redevelopment through national shantytown redevelopment schemes (SRSs)....We consider SRSs to be a policy model of the state project (mode of policy-making) of crisis management that aims to revitalize the national economy in the wake of the global financial crisis."

'Latent' Surplus Populations and Colonial Histories of Drought, Groundnuts, and Finance in Senegal
Nick Bernards | Geoforum
"Amidst growing concern about the displacement of rural populations exposed to climate change, new financial instruments are increasingly being presented as key tools for the management of climate risks...The promotion of new financial instruments in response to crises of agrarian production has a much longer history in Africa and elsewhere."

Canada As a Peninsula State: Conceptualizing the Emerging Geopolitical Landscape in the 21st Century
Tsuyoshi Kawasaki | International Journal: Canada's Journal of Global Policy Analysis
"This article presents a vision that conceives of Canada as 'a peninsula state' exposed to great power politics in its vicinity...Canada should be prepared for three kinds of strategic dynamics as it enters the game of great power politics: theatre-linkage tactics and wedge-driving tactics vis-à-vis China and Russia, as well as quasi-alliance dilemma with the United States."
China's Eurasia: the Belt and Road Initiative and the Creation of a New Eurasian Power
Tom Harper | The Chinese Journal of Global Governance

"The Belt and Road Initiative alongside the Shanghai Cooperation Organisation are the latest phase of China's return to the Eurasian landmass after the collapse of the Soviet Union...China is as much a Eurasian power in the vein of Mackinder's theories as Russia is, with the BRI providing a potential opportunity to further integrate with Eurasia."

BOOKS

Honor and the Political Economy of Marriage: Violence Against Women in the Kurdistan Region of Iraq
Joanne Payton | Rutgers University Press

"This book provides a description of 'honor'-based violence that focuses upon the structure of the family rather than the perpetrator's culture...and argues that within societies primarily organized by familial and marital connections, women’s 'honor' is a form of symbolic capital within a 'political economy' in which marriage organizes intergroup connections."

Towards a Segmented European Political Order: The European Union's Post-Crisis Conundrum
Jozef Bátora, John Erik Fossum | Routledge

"The book spells out the key features of [this] a segmented political order with in-built biases and constraints in ideational and structural terms and how it more concretely manifests itself in the EU's institutional and constitutional make-up, and in how member states constrain and condition EU action"

The Origins of the Modern Japanese Bureaucracy
Yuichiro Shimizu | Bloomsbury Academic

"Through careful political analysis and vivid human narratives, this book tells the dynamic story of how personal ambition, new educational institutions, and state bureaucratic structures interacted to make a modern political system premised on recruiting talent, not status or lineage."

JOURNALISM & ESSAYS

The Grassroots Film Movement Growing in Rio De Janeiro's Favelas
Mariana Simões | Hyper Allergic

"Rocywood movies - inspired by Hollywood - portray local realities in the favelas, from the joys of growing up in a tight-knit neighborhood to the difficulties of living among violence."

Roaring Through Cuba With Che Guevara's Son
Tony Perrottet | Smithsonian

"The planet today is being destroyed. It's not volcanoes or earthquakes that are doing it. We are doing it ourselves! The world can be a better place. And human beings have to fight for that."

The Need for an African Lightsource
Prosper Ngabonziza | Elephant in the Lab

"Setting up new infrastructures would play an important role in preventing best-trained African researchers from emigrating. This physicist states that having a synchrotron light source would be very beneficial for the continent as a whole."

REPORTS, DISSERTATIONS, & MISCELLANEOUS

The European Rule of Law and Illiberal Legality in Illiberal Constitutionalism: The Case of Hungary
Tim Drinóczi | MTA Law

"This paper claims that the term illiberal legality can be used to describe the hollowed-out meaning of the European Rule of Law in Hungary. Illiberal legality accentuates the instrumental use of domestic law in both legislation and law application."
Still Spying on Dissent. The Enduring Problem of FBI First Amendment Abuse
Chip Gibbons | Defending Rights & Dissent
"The evidence marshaled in this report creates a powerful case that greater oversight of the FBI is urgently needed... [and argues] that congress must exercise its oversight powers to investigate FBI First Amendment abuses."

The European Commission in EU Defense Industrial Policy
Sophia Besch | Carnegie Endowment
"If member states do not agree on interests, threat assessments, and strategy, if they cannot agree on what type of military operations they want to be able to do, even the best supranational EU instruments will remain unused"
