“Left Behind?” Financialization and Income Inequality Between the Affluent, Middle Class, and The Poor

Allen Hyde | Sociological Inquiry

“There is increasing scholarly evidence that financialization has contributed to rising income inequality, especially by concentrating income among the affluent and rich...The relative incomes of both the middle class and the poor are hurt by financialization...; however, relative incomes of the poor are especially sensitive to financialization.”

The Costs of War: Condolence Payments and the Politics of Killing Civilians

Thomas Gregory | Review of International Studies

“Coalition forces have spent upwards of $50 million on condolence payments to Afghan and Iraqi civilians...Condolence payments continued to objectify and devalue the lives of Afghans and Iraqis by treating them as a means to an end rather than an end in themselves.”

Jamal Lewis, Diana Hernández, Arline T. Geronimus | Energy Efficiency

“Structural racism in the form of racial residential segregation and the series of laws, policies, and practices that continue to reinforce it have robbed generations of African Americans of socioeconomic opportunity, wealth accumulation, safe, secure or energy-efficient housing, and full societal inclusion...We argue for investing in policies that provide energy efficiency and weatherization assistance-and not only energy bill assistance...”

Public Versus Private Water Delivery, Remunicipalization and Water Tariffs

Germà Bel | Utilities Policy

“Evidence regarding the drivers and the effects of remunicipalization remains in short supply. This paper disentangles the role played by a range of factors - most notably overpricing and corruption under private ownership - in the decision to remunicipalize these services.”

Forging Transnational Ties From Below: Challenging the Brazilian Mining Giant Vale S.A. Across the South Atlantic

Eric Cezne | The Extractive Industries and Society

“This paper discusses how the internationalization of the Brazilian mining corporation Vale S.A, particularly its incursion into Mozambique, has given rise to transnational contestation efforts to resist extraction, from below and along a South-South axis. It does so by approaching the politics and practices of mobilization of the International Articulation of those Affected by Vale (AV)...”

Penal Populism: Negotiating the Feminist Agenda. Evidence From Spain and Poland

Magdalena Grzyb | European Journal of Criminology

“Whereas penal populist discourse has been conspicuous in Spain, and the authorities there ally themselves with domestic feminist groups and scholars to combat gender-based violence, Poland has never embraced the feminist agenda, despite the widespread influence and effectiveness of penal populism in that country...Why are feminist demands likely to be addressed in some countries where penal populism discourse has emerged in the political and public sphere, but not in others?”
The Everyday Practices of Global Finance: Gender and Regulatory Politics of 'Diversity'
Penny Griffin | International Affairs

"This article argues that practices of global finance provide a rich opportunity to consider gender’s embodiment in everyday, but highly regulatory, financial life. Tracing a pathway through the rise of the 'diversity agenda' in global finance in the wake of the global financial crisis, the article asks how 'diversity' has shaped the global financial services industry, and whether it has challenged the reproduction of gendered power in global finance."

BOOKS

The Queering of Corporate America: How Big Business Went From LGBTQ Adversary To Ally
Carlos A. Ball | Beacon Press

"An accurate picture of the LGBTQ rights movement’s achievements is incomplete without this surprising history of how corporate America joined the cause."

Women and Work: Feminism, Labour, and Social Reproduction
Susan Ferguson | Pluto

"Across the world women are taking to the streets to protest unfair working conditions, abortion laws, and sexual violence. But why do some feminists choose to fight for more women CEOs, while others fight for a world without CEOs?"

Black in Place: The Spatial Aesthetics of Race in a Post-Chocolate City
Brandi Thompson Summers | The University of North Carolina Press

"This book analyzes how blackness - as a representation of diversity - is marketed to sell a progressive, 'cool', and authentic experience of being in and moving through an urban center."

JOURNALISM & ESSAYS

Life Inside Guantánamo: An Oral History
Peter Jan Honigsberg | Literary Hub

"Because it is a relatively new form of isolation, linguistic isolation warrants special attention and further study in the detention context."

Why Do Police Drive Cars?
Jackson Smith | Public Books

"To fully reckon with racial injustices today, we must attend to how continuities of racism, surveillance, and violence have affected the political development of American policing."

Bill Gates and the New Class of Wealth Whiners
James Dennin | MEL Magazine

"What happens if you actually do the math on a wealth tax? The rich still get way richer. Under Warren's plan, if Gates lives to 400, he’ll be worth about $71 sextillion."

REPORTS, DISSERTATIONS, & MISCELLANEOUS

Education Has Been 'Dumbed-Down' in Tax Reform
Melanie McCoskey | University of Akron

"With promises of 'Make America Great Again' and tax reform for 'middle-class' Americans, the current federal government administration has implied that the average American would become more prosperous under this tax system."

The Business of Building Walls
Mark Akkerman | Transnational Institute

"Thirty years after the fall of the Berlin Wall, Europe is once again known for its border walls. This time Europe is divided not so much by ideology as by perceived fear of refugees and migrants, some of the world’s most vulnerable people."
Climate Change and the Financial System
Irene Monasterolo | Boston University
“This work discusses a growing stream of research in climate finance risk metrics and methods to assess investors’ exposure to forward-looking climate risks, price such risks in financial contracts and investors’ portfolios.”

VIDEOS

The Case Against Humane War
Samuel Moyn | Blavatnik School of Government
“This video explores Leo Tolstoy’s still-relevant criticism of attempts to make war more humane through international law... and argues that Tolstoy’s criticism remained constant despite shifting reasons and the almost total change in his career.”

Collective Resistance in the Courthouse: How Communities Are Contesting Mass Incarceration
Jocelyn Simonson | The Houston Institute
“This talk reflects about forms of collective resistance including bail funds, bailouts, participatory defense, and courtwatching.”

The Nation in The Birth of a Nation
Geoffrey Harpham | Bard College Berlin
“Reviled and dismissed as the most morally shameful major work of art produced in the United States for its treatment of race and racial violence, D. W. Griffith's 1915 film 'The Birth of a Nation' can also be understood as an unintended reflection on the subject of the nation.”

PODCASTS

Squatters in the Capitalist City
Miguel Martinez | This Is Hell!
“A critical review of the current research on squatting and of the historical development of the movements in European cities according to their major social, political and spatial dimensions.”

Open Borders
Bryan Caplan | Economics Detective Radio
“Opening all borders could eliminate absolute poverty worldwide and usher in a booming worldwide economy-greatly benefiting humanity. This episode makes the case for unrestricted immigration.”

Revolutionary Strategy Series (on Political Consciousness)
C Derick Varn, Kyle Thompson | From Alpha To Omega
“This podcast analyses the history of the 20th century from a Marxist perspective and discusses why we shouldn't just do what the Russians did.”
